Here's what I used for this shirt (really you can use just about anything for the stencil): - Sharp hobby knife - Sheets of cardboard (flattened cardboard boxes work well) - Spray bottle (got mine from the Dollar Store, though they charged $1.67, what a crock!) - Bleach (again Dollar Dollar, but was more. Seriously guys, change your name) - A fun shape (any object will work so long as its silhouette is easily recognizable) - Plain t-shirts Mix the bleach and water 50/50, you're going to need a bit so I'd recommend a minimum of 250ml (1 cup) of each. Now is a good time to wash your shirts to get the shrinking out of the way. Thanks to the web, designers are now able to print and sell their designs to a wider audience. Consequently, independent T-shirt design has become increasingly popular over the past few years as designers and illustrators are enticed by this method of showcasing their work. Here, we've selected ten of our favourite designs from around the web. We hope they inspire you and we'd love to hear about your favourite T-shirt designs in the comments! Don't forget to check out: 10 amazing tote bags for designers The 20 best sneaker designs of all time 01. SOYU: Wisdom by TADOT-shirt design: Design duo TADO created this Eastern inspired tee SOYU is a T-shirt design agency with a difference. Focusing on Eastern culture, it incorporates quotes, proverbs and age-old wisdom into each of its T-shirt designs. They called upon their favourite artists to bring you their favourite pieces of wisdom from a more traditional time. This T-shirt design was crafted by Creative Bloq favourites TADO. T-shirt design: Any user can submit their T-shirt design for consideration Most of you will already know about Threadless (opens in new tab) but for those that don't, users can submit T-shirt designs to the site, which are then voted on for a seven-day period by other users in the community. Once the scoring period has ended, the T-shirt design receives a score from 0 to 5. This is used as a gauge by Threadless to decide what gets made into a tee! This top scoring tee was designed by Phil Jones. 03. Lazy Oaf: Big Tongue Slob T-shirt design: Lazy Oaf was set up in 2001 from a market stall and is now stocked worldwide Lazy Oaf is a creative label currently based in East London. Started by Gemma Shiel back in 2001 with hand screen printed tees, its collections are now stocked in over 150 outlets worldwide. With this 'Big Tongue Slob' T-shirt design you can also zip the tongue back into a pocket in case you don't feel like getting your tongue out. 04. My Yard: Wild Card T-shirt design: My Yard was set up by graphic designers Jake Phillips and Tim Chapman My Yard are graphic design duo Jake Phillips and Tim Chapman. With an eye for fashion and design, they came together to produce their own designs as well as featuring some local artists and illustrators. This 'Wild Card' T-shirt design was from their A/W collection and still proves popular with customers. Featuring Disney-style hands with intricate illustration, it's a design win. 05. REBEL8: Blessed T-shirt design: Legendary tattoo and graffiti artist Mike Giant is behind the original artwork Deeply rooted in skateboard, graffiti, and tattoo culture, REBEL8's core purpose is to showcase its trademark lifestyle through unique products. Most graphics within the REBEL8 product line are hand illustrated, with no computer generated enhancements or manipulations. The designer behind the original artwork at REBEL8 is the legendary tattoo and graffiti artist Mike Giant. 06. Folk: Parsons tee T-shirt design: Folk won a Scottish Fashion Award back in 2011 Established back in 2001 by Cathal McAteer, Folk has one simple ethos for its designs. Fed up of people buying tees just for the branding, they make sure each design is well balanced and subtle. Since receiving a prestigious Scottish Fashion Awards nod in 2011, there are now five stores, including one in Munich, while the label is stocked in such prestigious outlets as Liberty, Coggles in York and Goodstead in Edinburgh. 07. Donuts: Uno One R&BT-shirt design: Donuts also exhibits local artists and illustrators Donuts is an independent store and exhibition space based in the centre of Bristol. Stocking brands such as Norse projects, Wood Wood and Rockwell, the store strives to support independent labels. They also regularly host exhibition evenings showcasing local artists, illustrators and designers. This design, which features illustrations of popular R&B songs was created by Daddison and printed by Uno One. 08. No Guts No Glory: Snakeman T-shirt design: No Guts No Glory was recently featured in Computer Arts magazine NO GUTS NO GLORY is a community based collective of creative people from around the UK, established in November 2009 by Nathan Blaker. Their designs are hand-screenprinted by Get a Grip who specialise in using organic inks. This Snakeman T-shirt design was crafted by Jack Teagle and is on a limited run of two limited editions of 50. 09. Christopher David Ryan: Piece of Mind T-shirt design: Christopher David Ryan started selling prints in 2004 Based in Portland, Maine Christopher David Ryan started selling self-designed prints in 2004. He's kept busy with illustration and graphic design work, as part of studio More & Co and his solo projects. This 'Piece of Mind' T-shirt design is unfortunately now sold out but we loved it so much that we just had to share it with you. T-shirt design: Antonio only prints his T-shirt designs in batches of 30-40 Spanish artist Antonio Ladrillo child-like style and infectiously bold designs have earned him a reputation in T-shirt design. It's a shame then, that his tees only have a limited print run of 30-40. Quality is his main concern, so each colour on each print has two to three coats. This 'Animal Head' T-shirt design also comes in dog form. That's it for now! Please share your favourite T-shirt designs in the comments box below. From high-end designer pieces to fast-fashion finds, it seems that every clothing store is selling their own version of a "deconstructed" blouse — and we are absolutely baffled by the trend. The TODAY staff weighed in on some of the wackiest ones out there. And it turns out that not everyone was vehemently opposed to the look, while some definitely were. Striped Swing-back Blouse, $855, Bergdorf Goodman Bergdorf Goodman Video producer Sam Okazaki zeroed right in on this slouchy blouse saying, "This looks like 'Bananas in Pyjamas.'" After looking back at the iconic children's show we have to say ... she isn't wrong. Who knew Bananas in Pyjamas were such fashion icons! Alamy Stock One Shoulder Top, $98, Shopbop Shopbop Editor Brittany Loggins chose another TV reference to explain the confusion she felt about this white one-shoulder top. "This looks like the work of a 'Project Runway' designer who gets booted off." We can totally imagine Heidi Klum saying "auf wiedersehen" to this one. RELATED: Here's a sneak peek at the 4 hottest trends of spring Corset with Knot Detail, $58, ASOS ASOS Digital booker Nicole Mastrangelo had some uncomfortable flashbacks after seeing this particular top. "This took me instantly back to high school and the early millennium ... and the unfortunate trends I sported." She's not alone! It seems like we all prefer to leave those looks in the past. Ruffled Poplin-Paneled Open-Knit Cotton Top, $325, Net-A-Porter Net-A-Porter "It's just a disaster," social media editor Brooke Sassman said bluntly. Enough said. We apologize, this video has expired. 'Clear-Knee Mom Jeans': Are they the bee's knees in fashion? March 15, 2017 02:21 Open-Shoulder Pinstripe Top, $23, Forever 21 Forever 21 This top surprisingly got a lot of love! Digital booker Kelsea Purpura admitted she was a fan, "Not gonna lie, I actually like this one." Editor Jordan Muto was also into it. "Striped button-down shirts can feel very conservative and really something you would wear only to the office," she said. "The open back and cold shoulder give this traditional style a modern and fashionable twist that I would wear with either ripped white jeans or denim shorts." Asymmetric Striped Top, $1290, Saks Fifth Avenue Saks Fifth Avenue Executive editor Ashley Parrish had one simple question after seeing this top: "Where are her hands?" Sassman was also feeling some sticker shock after spying the price tag. "I feel most offended by the asymmetric top that's listed at a mere $1290," she exclaimed. "I would never spend almost $1300 to look like I got dressed in the dark." Studio Asymmetric Shirt with Ribbon, $100, Zara Zara Loggins was puzzled by this open-back top saying, "Like, how would you tie it exactly?" This is the kind of shirt you'd probably have to phone a friend for help before getting dressed. And at that point, is it even worth it? Open-Shoulder Pinstripe Shirt, $36, Forever 21 Forever 21 Okazaki was not feeling this structured button down with detached sleeves that are held together by little ties at the shoulder. "This one makes me uncomfortable," she said. We don't blame her! The majority of the office was appalled by the collection of strange shirts in general. RELATED: The 3 top trends of spring, according to Sarah Jessica Parker's stylist Parents editor Rebecca Dube recognized these trends. "These look like what happens when my 3-year-old insists on dressing himself and does the buttons all crooked. 'No Mommy, I do it my WELF!'" she said mimicking her (super adorable) toddler. "It's cute on a 3-year-old ... if I came to work dressed like this, I think my dear colleagues would start planning an intervention." Editor Shane Lou shared similar sentiments saying, "This looks like the end result of what would happen if a child sneaked into a closet with a pair of scissors. 'Cold shoulder, shimmer, ruffles: Pull off these fashion trends like a celeb' March 10, 2017 04:44 Food editor Emi Boscamp also weighed in. "I thought cold shoulders were bad," she said. "These are freezing shoulders/chest/back/belly." Luckily, she offered up some alternatives saying, "You might as well not wear a shirt. No, wait, that would be way more acceptable." Perhaps we're just not privy to the best way to wear these deconstructed styles. Some staffers were actually pretty open to the trend. "I actually like most of these shirts," Muto said. "While I'm not 100 percent confident I could pull them off, I think they could look fabulous with some ripped skinny jeans and either slip-on mules, sneakers, lace-up flats or even a pair of stilettos for a night out." To each their own!
